

Corporate (Bank) Loan Strategy

June 2021

OBJECTIVE

The Corporate (Bank) Loan Strategy seeks to outperform the Credit Suisse Leveraged Loan Index.

INVESTMENT STRATEGY

The Strategy invests primarily in first lien bank loans of non-investment grade companies. The investment process is fundamental credit analysis focused on the larger companies. This process emphasizes relative value and liquidity, allowing us to be flexible and express views with conviction.

DIFFERENTIATING FEATURES

We believe our differentiator is a more selective approach with a focus on larger companies. We look for companies having strong fundamental characteristics with a catalyst for outperformance. Our process generally filters out companies with less than $100m in EBIT-DA and loan facilities/sizes of less than $300m.

We believe our focus on providing attractive income, total return, and liquidity while minimizing downside risk is a key differentiator in our process.

STRATEGY BENEFITS

Loans provide attractive levels of income while mitigating two very distinct risks within fixed income; interest rate and credit risk. Floating rate coupons result in little interest rate sensitivity (duration). Regarding credit risk, bank loans are senior in a company's capital structure. This typically results in much higher recovery rates when compared to high yield bonds.

Bank loans can also provide diversification benefits as loan returns have been negatively correlated with the returns of Treasuries and positively correlated with inflation.
